I'm writing a software to edit and make 4k video file. As the software is a.net core and very hard to do multithreading (due to dependency/lock). I wonder if I could use CUDA to help my software to edit the video. Does CUDA or OpenCL has their own 4k video processing hardware? A: OpenCL is just a standard API for programs to communicate with GPU's. You have to write the GPU code yourself, but this does not mean your software needs to be multithreaded. The key here is that all modern GPU's are OpenCL capable. You probably already know this, if you're editing 4K video. Your question is very broad, but can be answered in general: It depends on how big your video is, a Laptop GPU might not be powerful enough to edit 4K on the go How much data you need to process: Video compression usually requires more processors, but your GPU can make use of the additional cores Are you going to edit it again after you're done, or only render? Some software will output a file, which you can render multiple times after. How is your software going to communicate? You should have a look at this list, as it also includes devices with more compute power. 2015 African Championships in Athletics – Men's 400 metres The men's 400 metres event at the 2015 African Championships in Athletics was held between August 30–31 on Stade Charles de Gaulle in Ouagadougou. GLICKSTEIN and CORBIN, JJ., agree. NOTES [1] The language of the amended statute, as set forth in Ark.Code Ann. § 27-19-502(5) (Repl.1994), is as follows: (5) "A dependent child" means a child: (A) Whose parent or other person legally responsible for the care and maintenance of the child is unable to meet both his or her child-support obligation and his or her responsibility to provide for the health and safety of the child; or (B) Who is living with any of the following persons and is unable to meet his or her needs because of that condition: (i) Another parent or a guardian, a relative or another person who has lawfully adopted the child, or a foster parent; (ii) An institution or agency that is responsible for the care and protection of children. [2] The pertinent language of Rule 59 is as follows: Rule 59. New Trial. (a) Grounds. A new trial may be granted to all or any of the parties and on all or part of the issues (1) in an action in which there has been a trial by the court without a jury, upon the order of the court specifying the grounds therefor, or (2) in a jury action, on the order of the court setting aside the verdict of the jury or granting a new trial. * * * * * * (c) Effect. Unless the order specifies otherwise, a new trial is limited to those parties against whom the verdict was found; a new trial may not be granted to any party on a ground that could have been presented to the trial court at the time the new trial was sought. [3] The pertinent language of Ark. R.App. P.-Civ. 2(a) is as follows: Rule 2. Prohibited Acts. A. A party or a party's attorney may not in any manner offer or do anything during the trial or argument to the jury or judge or offer or do anything else which will delay the trial or obstruct the fair and impartial conduct of the trial. The present invention is
